HONEST ABE LINCOLN: The crowd at the opening of festivities in Wilson Park Wednesday night was entertained by none other than Abraham Lincoln, or at least a remarkable look alike. Richard F. Klein recreated an oratory first given by Lincoln in Springfield more than 120 years ago. The Fourth of July celebration in the park continues through Sunday.

EPA sanctions would affect industry

By Bill Milligan
Editor

CAHOOKA — Construction of factories and mills in the Metro East will be barred by officials of the United States Environmental Protection Agency.

Scientific evidence by the agency Monday prohibit the building of power plants, refiner ies, steel mills, industrial dry cleaners, major painting operations, industrial boilers and other large plants that would emit 100 tons of pollutants per year.

Affected were Madison, St. Clair and Monroe counties.

Area economic leaders are considering stringent regulations for the Metro East and Chicago.

They said such plans failed in the past because of the cost of adopting two sets of regulations.

"We're in the process of developing the new ordinance," said Mary Kane,

a spokesperson for the Southwest

Illinois Leadership Council.

"There appears to be a danger that we could be severely penalized for this (sanction) we could purse the plan," she said.

"Major growth has been prohibitored by this. We don't know if we were ever considered for an auto parts plant. Such a plant could have been an early knock-out factor."

There is a bright spot, Kane said. "The sanctions have not produced any immediate effect."

Complaints about cable TV probed

The Madison County state's attorney and his representative of the Illinois attorney general are looking into consumer complaints against Cencom Cable Television.

After hearing complaints in a press conference in Glen Carbon last week, State's Attorney Dick Allen will continue his investigation into allegations that Cencom is not living up to its responsibility to give good customer service, said Allen's spokesman, Myles McCall. The allegations are denied by Cencom officials.

Allen's spokesman, who heads the attorney general's Granite City regional office, said he will meet with officials in Springfield to discuss the complaints.

Cencom serves customers in an area including Edwardsville, Glen Carbon and the Quad City area in Madison County.

The telecommunications firm like Cencom has 25,000 subscribers in 18 municipalities and they have eight telephones to serve those 18 municipalities, they are clearly understaffed, McCall said.

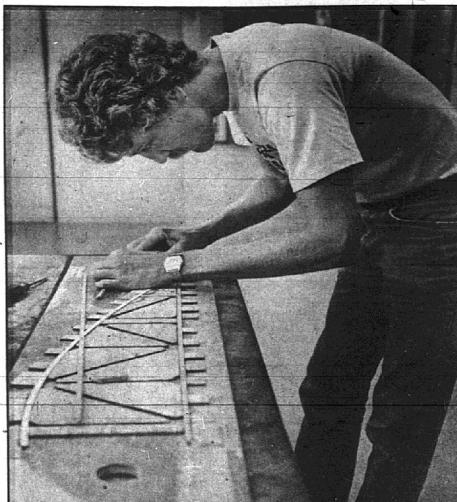

Allen said the state attorney's office gets 10 calls per day about Cencom's constantly busy phones if indicates they are understaffed on those phones.

McCall said one solution might be a meeting between Allen, Orsey and Cencom officials "in an effort to lay the cards on the table and see if we can sort this out."

Orsey said he first discussed the problem with Allen in April "and since then my office has talked to numerous people who are registering complaints about Cencom. Many of these have been service-oriented complaints about such things as recent late-night response to complaints and telephone communication problems.

"I will be meeting with Howard Hood, chief of the consumer protection division of the attorney general's office in Springfield, and then we'll be able to say more," Orsey said.

"Though I can't disclose the names of these people, I can say that we are addressing complaints which would come under the Illinois Consumer Fraud Act."

Music celebration in Wilson Park July 5

As the people of the Granite City area gather at Wilson Park to celebrate the Fourth of July, various churches in the community provide a special night of celebration through music.

On Sunday, July 5, at 7 p.m. on the stage at 27th Street and Delmar Avenue, the public is invited to assemble and enjoy the musical entertainment.

Scheduled to entertain are a duo and a quartet from the First Presbyterian Church.

Jack Jenkins, minister of music and youth at Third Baptist Church, will perform a selection of patriotic music through an organ concert. Solo presentations will be given by Lois Bilebrey and Rich Kachigian.

A special treat for the evening will be the appearance of the Scottish Rite Cathedral Choir.

Cooling funds available to low-income families

Nelson Hagnauer, chairman of the Madison County Board, is announcing that Madison County has been awarded cooling funds under the Illinois Home Energy Assistance Program (IHEAP).

He said the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs has awarded $64,131 to administer the cooling program for Madison County.

The county estimates that approximately 500 households could be served under this grant.

Effective July 1, 1987 the Madison County Community Development Department will take and process applications from all interested applicants who reside in the county.

The cooling program is limited to income-eligible households which contain a member with a documented medical necessity as defined in cooling.

The existence of the medical condition must be certified by a qualified medical practitioner.

He said persons wishing to apply for cooling assistance should contact the nearest intake site in their area.

Also, applicants must provide documentation for the past 90 days for household members, a current utility bill, Social Security numbers for all household members and a doctor's statement.

Completing an application for cooling assistance does not guarantee that funding will be available or that a household will receive assistance.

Persons having questions regarding the IHEAP Program may contact the Madison County Community Development Energy Assistance Office at 1000 Madison, Rm. 5105, or the State of Illinois Energy Hotline, 1-800-252-3643.

Applications are being accepted in District I, Marion and Perry Counties; District II, the Quad City Area; III, Mingo, New Douglas, Fort Russell and Leed areas; IV, Collinsville and Edwardsville; and V, Marine, St. Jacob and Saline.

Big screens will aid VP Fair-goers

Seven large video screens will be set up at strategic spots on the VP Fair grounds for free viewing of night and activities, said Kevin Yanker, a staff member of Swank Audio Visuals Inc., St. Louis.

Two screens will be 15-by-20 feet in size and in addition, a dozen movie screens. They will be located at the Overlook Stage at the base of the Gateway Arch and at the main steps overlooking the fair grounds.

Five 60-foot screens will be placed at the Miller and Dance stages, both located at the north pond; the Schucks stage at the north railroad track; the Pacific stage at the south railroad track; and the Venture stage, located at the south pond.

"This is the first time anything like this has been tried at the VP Fair," said Yanker. "We have used this video technology in many places around the country, but never on a scale as large as the Arch and fairgrounds."

With this new system, fair-goers will be able to view Friday evening's live entertainment, Saturday's main event on Saturday evening, ABC's live broadcast of the VP Fair activities will be shown via satellite dish. An edited version of Saturday's broadcast also will be shown on Sunday evening.

In addition, public service announcements regarding traffic conditions and weather updates, among others, will now be heard simultaneously throughout the fair grounds in via video on the screens. In the past, such announcements were made to main stage audiences only.

Hoffstetter found guilty

EDWARDSVILLE — A jury found Steven Hoffstetter guilty Wednesday evening on three counts of murder and one count each of armed robbery and home invasion.

The verdict came following a trial that began last week before Charles Romani Jr., Madison County associate judge.

Hoffstetter, 29, of Alton was found guilty in the slayings of Christopher Shrom, 26, Kevin Burch, 23, and Don Riggins, 24.

The three bodies were found at 5:45 a.m. Oct. 7, 1985, in the rubble of a house fire on Smith Road, northwest of Edwardsville. The victims had been shot before the fire.

Mr. Burch and Miss Riggins were former Granite City residents.

"I am just glad justice is served," said Vanessa Mullis, Mr. Burch's sister. "If it was him (Hoffstetter), he deserved

Fire bomb thrown in Dempsey-Adams

GRANITE CITY — A fire bomb was thrown through the glass front door of Dempsey-Adams Auto Body, 1334 18th St., shortly before 9:13 Wednesday night.

A patrolling police officer found what appeared to be a fire bomb burning at the base of the door, but little damage occurred.

A car had been seen parked near the door prior to the fire. The driver was described as having reddish hair and a reddish beard.

The bulletins from Bi-State officials stated they gave drivers off," he said. "They didn't have to give us off."

Another Alton man, Anthony Fisher, 26, faces the same charges and is awaiting trial.

Grande City attorney Michael B. Mullis, who assisted Hoffstetter in the trial, Robert Trone, Madison County assistant state attorney, prosecuted.

Trone maintained that the killing was not related. He said Mr. Shrom purchased marijuana and other drugs from Hoffstetter and hadn't paid for them.

He said Mr. Burch and Miss Riggins were staying with Mr. Shrom while waiting to move into a Granite City apartment, Mullis said.

Miss Riggins had been living with an aunt in Glen Carbon, Mullis said, and had dated Mr. Burch for approximately 10 months before the slayings.

VP Fair special and shuttle buses dropped

Plans for special bus services to the VP Fair provided by the Bi-State transit system have been canceled, leaving fair-goers with the prospect of fighting traffic or walking long distances to the riverfront.

Bi-State Development Agency Executive Director R. L. Raleigh said during Wednesday afternoon that the transit agency's special shuttle, Illinois express and additional buses would not be provided this week.

Bi-State also announced it has decided to provide regular service — rather than holiday service — systemwide on Friday.

The regular service will better serve those attending the fair because it provides about four times more buses than holiday service, D'Adamo said.

D'Adamo said any Bi-State driver who is not on duty Friday, including those who would have had a holiday, can volunteer to work on the fair.

Each year of the fair, Bi-State has considered the weekday of the fair a holiday and offers drivers overtime pay for that day. Most drivers usually sign up to work and they get paid time-and-a-half, he said.

Less than a dozen had signed up by late Tuesday.

During a meeting Monday, some drivers removed their names from a list to work overtime, D'Adamo said, adding that many drivers did not sign up.

The drivers who did sign up normally make $12.33, D'Adamo said. Conservatively, a driver working all day would make up to $1,000, he said.

Roy Bartlett, president of Local 788, said many drivers did not sign up for overtime because they had made plans for the holiday.

"I think it is directly related to the negotiations," D'Adamo said. The Agency and Amalgamated Transit Union Local 788 have been in contract negotiations since late February. Representatives of both sides to a federal mediator to help.

But State Rep. Charles Quincy Troupe, vice president of Local 788, emphasized that the blame should rest on the agency's decision to declare Friday an official holiday for the Fourth of July, leaving too few drivers to operate the regular service and the shuttle.

"The bulletins (from Bi-State officials) stated they gave drivers off," he said. "They didn't have to give us off."

Another Alton man, Anthony Fisher, 26, faces the same charges and is awaiting trial.

Grande City attorney Michael B. Mullis, who assisted Hoffstetter in the trial, Robert Trone, Madison County assistant state attorney, prosecuted.

Program targets alcohol, drugs

A comprehensive Alcohol and Drug Awareness Program, featuring an education and prevention, became operational July 1 at SIUE.

The main purpose will be to provide information and counseling to students on the community about alcohol and drug use and abuse, said Dean of Students Constance Rockingham.

The program, developed by a committee of administrators, faculty, staff and students, will operate under auspices of the nine-month-old Wellness Center, a component of University Health Service.

"One goal is to make it a model that can be adopted by other universities and colleges that have been trying to devise effective alcohol and drug awareness programs," said Judith Baumann, health service director.

Free information, counseling and referrals under the new program will be available with the utmost degree of confidentiality and without penalty or reprisal to students, faculty and staff members, Baumann said.

The SIUE Alcohol and Drug Awareness Program won't be involved in actual medical treatment of individuals with addictions, Baumann said.

"We are going to use a pre-ventive model to inform, educate cate, refer and encourage healthy attitudes," she said.

The program is being financed by allocations from the Office of the President, Rockingham said.

It will operate at two sites. One open during normal days, the other with offices on the lower level of the Rendleman Building adjacent to health service. Plans are to have the other, in University Center, Rockingham open for evening and possibly weekend hours, as well as during days.

The centers will be staffed by health care professionals who are qualified to counsel individuals and knowledgeable about services and agencies associated with alcohol and drug programs, Baumann said.

The program also will include specialized workshops to assist the university community in becoming well informed about effects of alcohol and drug programs.

The Alcohol and Drug Awareness Program is using a specially-designed poster showing a shattered egg. "Sooner or Later You Come Down," the poster's slogan warns.

University officials hope it will help persuade those with alcohol or drug problems "to come down" to the counseling and information centers.

What does SIUE need such a program?

While no precise estimates of drug and alcohol abuse exist for the campus community, there's little reason to believe that its nature and degree greatly from the national picture, Baumann said.

The centers will be staffed by health care professionals who are qualified to counsel individuals and knowledgeable about services and agencies associated with alcohol and drug programs, Baumann said.

The program also will include specialized workshops to assist the university community in becoming well informed about effects of alcohol and drug programs.

"The SIUE Alcohol and Drug Awareness Program won't be involved in actual medical treatment of individuals with addictions, Baumann said.

"Between 75 percent of high school students nationwide use alcohol, and 61 percent of high school seniors have used drugs.

"Between 50 and 90 percent of students on college-age campuses drink alcoholic beverages 10 to 20 percent drink abusively.

"The most popular drug substance, marijuana, frequently is five to 20 times stronger than what was available 10 years ago.

Drug tests not an answer

Drug testing would be an ineffective approach to what hasn't been proven to be a serious problem.

Subjecting all city workers to tests as a result of still unsubstantiated allegations of drug use and sales by members of the Granite City Police Department indicates a mentality that should be left where it belongs — in the enlightened minds of 1950s, McCarthy-era politicians. No matter how well-intentioned, testing does more harm than good.

Testing isn't likely to catch dealers. Not everyone who sells drugs uses them. A multimillion-dollar industry is operated by calculating "businessmen" who carefully weigh profits against risks. The smarter, local dealers wouldn't be profitable if they stuck the inventory in their mouths, noses and arms. Testing for drugs probably wouldn't catch dealers, who are alleged to be the real problem.

Testing to catch users offers little gain, if any. Drug testing companies, as shown on a recent television report, are unreliable. The urine of a horse was accepted as belonging to a man. Certain foods can cause reactions that appear to indicate drug use. Accusing anyone of using drugs, based on test results, offers the possibility of a law suit. In addition to the unreliability of tests, and the potential for a law suit, the city would likely have to pay all costs involved in sending little jars of urine to a lab for testing. Testing wouldn't be a voluntary process, though that catch-word is used in an attempt to bypass constitutional safeguards providing due process. A person who wouldn't want to take a test would realize that in refusing he'd risk reassignment to other duties, or worse. The request would actually be a demand carrying a hidden threat — an unfair and constitutionally debatable imposition on the majority who don't touch illegal drugs.

Drug testing costs too much like the loyalty oaths of the 1950s. Those who signed the oaths were considered good Americans. Presumably, Communists wouldn't sign, which shows how ridiculous oath advocates were. But good Americans, on the principle that they were good Americans and didn't need to sign a piece of paper to prove it, objected to loyalty oaths and risked severe reprisals.

Granite City, we don't need loyalty oaths and we don't need drug tests. What we need is a strong resolve to put aside allegations in favor of impartial investigations.

Only prolonged undercover work can beat area "druggies." Catch them. Jail them. Forget them. That's what everyone really wants, and it's up to the mayor's administration to deliver.

The public deserves results, not test cases.

Dal, Cardinals soar high

The roar of the crowd is much in evidence these days as the Cardinals vie for National League Eastern Division honors. They may attract 2,800,000 to 3,000,000 fans through the turnstiles in 1987.

Although the spotlight usually shines on the star athletes and on New Athens' Whitey Herzog, regarded by many as baseball's best manager, General Manager Dallan Maxvill obviously is making a major contribution by his actions, non-actions, judgment and administrative skills.

Limited in his budgeting to baseball-generated funds rather than the owners' vast brewing fortune, Maxvill nevertheless has shown the ability to trade for a key player when needed and to promote a promising minor leaguer at the appropriate time.

The past winter's public unrest over whether the team had enough firepower for this season has been forgotten in its surprise advance to the National League's best win-loss record and the major leagues' biggest hold on first place.

From the Granite City police little league, Granite City High School and Inter-City League, the pre-Ozzie-era shortstop whiz helped spark several champion Cardinal seasons in the 1960s and later was part of several Oakland World titles.

With his 1985 GM contract just extended through 1988, Maxvill seems destined to continue to be an integral part of annual recurrences of "pennant fever."

Aid springboard to work

Some issues remained unsettled as Illinois legislators went into an overtime session at mid-week, but progress already had been made toward emphasizing job opportunities and reducing dependence on welfare.

Welfare-to-work programs were expanded and the child-support enforcement system was strengthened, and support services were provided to help former aid recipients stay in their new jobs.

With an added outlay of $22 million, the state expects $57 million in welfare savings, not counting the immense value to those whose lives become more constructive and satisfying.

Project Chance already has placed 75,000 Illinois recipients into jobs. This effort will continue, and grants can now go to employers as wage subsidies. Medical and day care benefits will be extended so those switching to the world of work will be better equipped to remain there.

With non-payment of child support the leading cause of welfare dependency, penalties will be doubled and a one-year amnesty program will go into effect. And the Department of Public Aid will begin helping disabled clients apply for federal Supplemental Security Income.

Selecting Illinois as the model for pending federal welfare reform, Uncle Sam is pressuring this state for "making changes other states only talk about."

Should Olympic games be moved?

The 1988 summer Olympics are scheduled to take place in Seoul, South Korea, where protests, demonstrations and rioting have occurred the past two weeks over governmental and political troubles. In light of these internal problems, should the international Olympic committee move the Olympics to another location? Also, should professional athletes be allowed to participate in the Olympics since several countries allow their professionals to compete?

Richard Brown,
Granite City

"I believe the Koreans knew that was one of the issues when they started the protests. I think they will be held there. The other countries aren't even hiding the fact the use professionals. Our hockey team (in 1980) showed we could hold our own with amateurs."

Vincie Zerian,
Granite City

"I think so. There are enough problems there without adding more Americans involved. I always thought they (the Olympic games) were supposed to be amateurs who participate. That's the way it should be."

John Cormier,
Granite City

"I think they (the games) ought to go to a different country. Yes, I think the best should participate. Russia does it."

Predators thriving in permissiveness

A kindergarten girl visiting a police station saw on the wall pictures of the FBI's "10 most wanted men."

She asked if those were really photographs of wanted criminals.

Her police officer guide said there were.

Then the little girl asked, "Why didn't you keep the men when you took their pictures?"

It is neither a new story nor a funny one.

Researchers for the publication Psychology Today researched our prison population and found records of the median time served by criminals sentenced to "life in prison" — the median time they were actually locked up — was five years and nine months.

Many of their victims will suffer for the rest of their lives.

Until we make crime at least as dangerous for criminals as it is for victims, we aren't getting anywhere.

Ten percent of the inmates on death row had a prior homicide conviction; one in 20 were on parole at the time of the murder.

A massive study of juvenile crime reveals half of the chronic offenders were never even locked up.

Owners, make certain you are prepared to: accept the financial costs of veterinary care (including rabies, impregnation, spay/neutering), registration and tagging of your animal with local authorities; keeping your pet on a leash when in public; assuring a safe, fenced-in yard environment at home; and providing a nutritious diet, exercise, companionship, training and love.

If you are no longer able to provide for your pet, then take the time and effort of finding it a proper home.

If you suspect possible neglect, abuse or abandonment, contact the Association for the Protection of Animals, the Madison County Humane Society or the local authorities for assistance.

The animals depend on us. Don't let them down.

There are remedies but our society lacks the stomach.

Superior Court Judge Stewart Lynch of Wilmington, Del., once used a state law enacted in 1895 to send two men to the whipping post.

He was vetoed by higher court as "cruel" punishment isn't allowed.

Professor Paul Tracy, whose specialty is criminal justice at Northeastern University, says, "You let a kid do what he does with a gun, and then say he's going to continue doing it."

Experience demonstrates that tough laws don't work.

Illinois enacted new laws last year increasing penalties for rape. Convictions in the year since are up from 36 percent to 40 percent. The median sentence for those convicted is up from six years and three months to eight years.

If this is not the most we can do, it is the least we can do.

Ministers dispute Jesse Jackson's start

WASHINGTON — The Rev. Jesse Jackson is leading the large field of Democratic presidential hopefuls and has no trouble getting attention these days. But 18 years ago, he was a largely unknown, 26-year-old aide to the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., and the media paid scant attention to him.

That changed dramatically on April 4, 1968, when King was assassinated in Memphis, Tenn. Literally overnight, Jackson became one of the most celebrated Newsmen in the world, thanks to word about publicity for his political and civil rights causes.

How did this happen? Some of it, big and little, was in Memphis with King on the last day are still mystified by Jackson's actions immediately after the murder — and the way the press handled his accepting without question that he cradled the dying King in his arms.

"Jesse was talking to the press out in the yard after we were sure Dr. King was actually dead," recalled the Rev. Hosea Williams, King's associate who is now an Atlanta City Council member. "Jesse was talking to the press and showed them his blood shirt and I know the blood didn't come from Dr. King. I reacted very violently."

Williams told our reporter Lee Sylvester that he and others in the Southern Christian Leadership Conference watched another Jackson performance the next morning — on the television screen at the motel. Jackson was in Chicago, still wearing the bloody shirt.

"Jesse was feeling bad and big. Before we knew it, he was on the 'Today Show,'" Williams said. "I thought it was horrible. Jesse flew out that night to Chicago. Why would he wear a bloody shirt on all night? The blood did not come from the body of Dr. King."

Williams attributed Jackson's actions to his youth. "I feel very bad about it," Williams said. "He was just a young man and made a mistake. It could hurt him."

A similar view was expressed by the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, who was the SCLC's Abernathy, who was the first to reach King's side when he fell to the floor of the motel balcony, said Williams. Abernathy, a friend, said Jackson was the first to reach the fallen leader and the last person to talk to him.

can only say Jesse has grown. He has matured greatly."

Abernathy and Williams said they recalled Jackson being in the room when King was on the balcony when the fatal shot was fired, but have no recollection that he reached King's side. But the news account in the Chicago Daily News, April 5, 1968, reported: "(Jackson) said he rushed to Dr. King's side immediately, but got no response when he asked, 'Do you, can you hear me?'"

Williams' Jackson campaign office for comment. His press aide, Frank Watkins, said Jackson makes no claim that he talked to King after he shot him.

Williams said: "We were talking to the press and showed them his blood shirt and I know the blood didn't come from Dr. King. I reacted very violently."

leader who spearheaded the occupation of Wounded Knee in 1973. The only thing the two men have in common is an outspoken criticism of the government's infringement on individual rights.

Deregulation — DRAWBACKS: Deregulation has created chaos at the nation's airports by increasing passenger loads and creating delays. Transportation Department records show that more consumer complaints were filed in the first three months of this year than during the first quarter of 1986.

DISAPPOINTED CUSTOMER: President Desmond Hoyte of Guyana is not pleased with the expensive airplanes and helicopters that his cousin and predecessor in the late 1970s, Forbes Burnham, purchased from the Soviet Union. Our intelligence sources say that Hoyte is unimpressed with the quality of the Soviet planes and is negotiating at the exorbitant price his bankrupt country is paying for aircraft it doesn't need.

TWO-CENTS' WORTH: The oil industry has seized the oil patch and is using it to wage against dependence on imported oil and to argue that domestic production ought to be encouraged with well-known environmental rules, fewer restrictions on public land leases and tax breaks for oil companies. One thing there's an abundant supply of in this town is snake oil.

POLITICAL POTPOURRI: How strange is the Libertarian Party? Consider this: Two of the party's presidential nomination this September at its convention in Seattle are Ron Paul and Russell Means.

Paul is a former four-term Texas congressman who wants to get the country back on the gold standard; Means is the American Indian Movement

Super collider costly, worthy

The superconducting super collider is the most ambitious single scientific project ever attempted by mankind. The estimated cost is about $4.4 billion. And this project has been officially approved.

The superconducting super collider is not something broad in scope like the development of the atomic bomb. Instead it will perform specific types of studies, will explore some of the most fundamental items in our universe. It will try to determine how matter is put together.

To make such studies, enormous amounts of energy are required. This gigantic project will require a racetrack-shaped tunnel that is 52 miles long. About 10,000 powerful super conducting magnets will be used, two beams, 20-tin-million electron volt energy protons.

These two separate proton beams will travel in opposite directions around the tunnel and be allowed to collide — head-on.

Four experimental stations are planned at the points where the proton beams collide. During the collisions, new sub-atomic particles and business communities. There are determined attempts by many states to secure this monumental experiment for their area. The state of Illinois seems to have lost the lead in this major project.

The main reason is that Illinois already has the Fermilab in Batavia, near Chicago. They are incorporating the Fermilab into the new collider and that will be required for the superconducting super collider.

So, Illinois has spent or appropriated about $40 billion to develop this project. Dated plans have been developed, rights of way have been purchased, etc.

This gigantic facility will generate many jobs both in the construction and operation. Scientific personnel will be attracted to the area and should provide an impetus for many other developments as well.

But the overall importance of the project is that it will put the United States into the forefront of truly fundamental physics — the making of matter.

From these types of investigations, researchers expect to gain further insights into the realm of elementary particles. This could lead to a better understanding of how matter was created and in a roundabout way, how our universe was born.

This big project has generated some profound interest in the State news

Granite City (Ill.) Press-Record, Thursday, July 2, 1987 — 1C

GOP invites debate between Dole, DuPont
The Republican Assembly of Illinois, a 2,000-member organization, has invited former Delaware Gov. Thomas "Tom" DuPont and Sen. Sam Robert to be both contenders for the 1988 GOP presidential nomination, to debate.

The debate would allow the two to question and respond to each other, said Thomas F. Roesser, founder of the organization. He expects an answer this week from the two.

State collects toxic high school chemicals

About 600 high schools in the state have begun to remove hazardous and toxic materials that have been stockpiled in school laboratories, said Richard Carlson, director of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency.

The statewide collection will be completed during the summer recess.

About 880 high schools are participating in the program.

"Last year every high school in Illinois received a letter inviting them to participate in the program," Carlson said.

The program represents a change for the IEPA toward spending more time trying to reduce and remove environmental threats before they become emergencies.

Deaf-Blind awareness week declared in state

This week has been declared "Helen Keller Deaf-Blind Awareness Week" in Illinois in recognition of this isolating disability. About 1,000 people in the state are deaf-blind, although the exact number is probably higher, said a spokesman for the Governor's Planning Council on Developmental Disabilities.

The theme is "A Great Venture: A Great Venture." A coordinator for the governor's council cites thorough diagnostic and appropriate community services as the most pressing needs of people with this complex disability.

Information will be available from the Illinois Deaf-Blind Service Center at (312) 790-2474.

HMO consumers need backup, governor says

The governor is urging the Illinois General Assembly to enact legislation that would establish an Illinois Health Care Plan Guarantee Fund to protect the more than 1.4 million state consumers who are enrolled in Health Maintenance Organizations.

With the astounding growth of the HMO industry in the past few years has come the increasing likelihood of HMO insolvencies and unpaid claims," Gov. James

Thompson said. "More than one out of ten Illinois residents are using HMOs to cover their health care expenses."

During 1986, 26 state-licensed HMOs reported operational losses, with most others reporting reduced profit margins.

Livestock producers to get drought relief

Farmers in Illinois will be given special haying and grazing privileges in an attempt to offset the severe impact of the spring drought conditions in some areas of the state.

Under provisions of the 1985 Farm Bill, the secretary of agriculture has the authority in times of crisis to grant the use of Acres Conservation Reserve acres for haying and grazing. Farmers may not sell any of the hay or pastureland for profit. It is designed strictly to provide immediate relief for livestock producers.

DOC seeks opinions on outdoor needs

The Illinois Department of Conservation is seeking information on the outdoor recreational needs of citizens as part of the 1988 Statewide Comprehensive Outdoor Recreation Planning program.

Respondents are being asked to participate in a survey in which they choose and rank from a list of outdoor topics the concerns they decide are most important. For a copy of the questionnaire, readers may write to the Department of Conservation, Marla Kay French, Room 310, 5245 S. Second St., Springfield 62706 or call (217) 782-3715.

Schools to get funds for energy efficiency

Illinois has awarded $10 million from oil overcharge funds to the Conservation Commission for energy conservation improvements, and an additional $20 million may also be awarded to other public school districts throughout the state for energy conservation projects.

The award is part of the state's $30 million share of a settlement from stripper well oil overcharges.

Thompson gets fossil bill

SPRINGFIELD — Legislation to establish an official state fossil was sent to Gov. James Thompson last week.

The measure, sponsored in the Senate by Sen. Sam Vadalabene, D-Edwardsville, would designate the Illinois State Geological Survey's "Monster" as the official fossil subject to referendum ratification by Illinois school children.

The "Monster," a prehistoric marine animal "unrelated to any other known organism, living or extinct" was discovered by an amateur Illinois historian, Francis Tully.

Specimens are now on exhibit in major museums all over the country and Illinois State Geological Survey scientists urged the designation as an educational device.

It would join other official symbols of the state, including the monarch butterfly (insect), red-tail hawk (bird), white oak (tree), white-tailed deer (animal), bluegill (fish) and fluorite (mineral).

Good steel, a bad violin in the news

It's July, but we've just received our May/June The Mill, which reports Granite City Steel in April received the Caterpillar construction's Quality Certification Award.

The award recognizes Granite City Steel's long-range commitment to supply Caterpillar with "a high quality, reliable, top-quality, hot-rolled steel."

Any such award would be pleasing, but this one is particularly welcome because the huge tractor manufacturer plans to deal only with quality suppliers.

Representing employees of the Hot Strip Mill, Hot Roll Finishing and Cold Roll Coated Products in accepting the plaque was Bill Swanson, vice president and general manager.

Speaking of quality, Granite City Steel can be noted to be at least indirectly, since it is the sole steel supplier to A.O. Smith's Granite City facility, which provides vital parts for the Ford Taurus and Mercury Sable.

The Smith plant here has just won the Ford Q-1 Award as a superior supplier of quality products.

And Granite City Steel's Cold Roll and Coated Products employees have won the highest award of rural construction supply firms.

Granite City Steel and other divisions of National Steel are striving to break even or better to date, as construction worldwide price competition. How well is National doing?

First-quarter losses were reduced sharply in 1987, to $5.6 million, from $10.5 million last year, and encouraging, but there is concern that automobile companies' steel ordering may decrease later in the year, intensifying competition among steelmakers for non-union orders.

Dan Dierdorf and Mike Shanahan aren't the only sports celebrities willing to serve you a meal. On June 29, Mike Ditka, coach of Chicago's football team, was having fun in cerebration at his restaurant.

He has been named Restaurateur of the Year (corned beef) by the National Park Producers Council. We're not surprised, since he features Ditka Chops, serving 1,000 pounds of them every week (almost matching "the Refrigerator's" weight).

They are pork chops, but as you might expect when the topic even vaguely relates to pro football, they're not bad. For $10, you served three for $13.95. Sorry, no smaller portions, but you can get a bag for the left-over on your plate.

Pork producers are persistent propagandists, but we'll spare you from further pork news this week except for one final tasty morsel: Their next big push nationally will be a boneless chop.

Fake paintings — new works made to look like originals — have been much in the news this year. But substitutions for big profits are not limited to canvas.

U.S. District Judge William Schlesinger of Edwardsville ruled June 24 that a retired music teacher must return $15,500 to an Indiana woman who thought she had bought a 150-year-old violin from him 19 years ago.

She paid $17,500 after being told it was made in 1835 by Auguste Sebastian Philippe Bernardeau. The woman claimed the instrument might be worth $2,000, but it wasn't an authentic Bernardeau.

There also is pending legislation to add a ninth circuit judge. And the circuit judges could suggest that the high court add a temporary associate judge.

He doesn't live in Granite City anymore, but there is considerable local interest in the promotion of Circuit Judge Michael J. Calvo, 60, of Glen Carbon to the Fifth Appellate District, based at Mount Vernon.

Calvo represented the United Steelworkers before becoming a judge and is considered a good representative. He once waged a torrid campaign for city judge of Granite City, losing narrowly to Judge Fred J. Schuman, father of Alderman Fred P. Schuman.

George Moran of Granite City is a retired appellate judge and, in that role, maintained a judicial office in Granite City for his work on circuit court and other duties, traveling to Mount Vernon to hear appeals. Calvo also plans a Madison County office.

Judge Calvo originally was nominated to the bench as notified by the Illinois Supreme Court June 26 he is being given a temporary assignment (at least through Dec. 5, 1988) effective Oct. 1, 1987.

George W. Kasserman Jr., who is retiring after holding a similar assignment since 1979, Calvo will retain his position as a circuit judge until he will be relieved of all circuit duties.

Instead of the appellate district's present four elected judges and one appointee, legislation at Springfield would create a panel of six elected positions. If it becomes law, there will be no extension of the appointment. If it isn't passed and signed into law, his assignment could be continued indefinitely.

There also is pending legislation to add a ninth circuit judge. And the circuit judges could suggest that the high court add a temporary associate judge.

Studded tires on fire trucks get approval

The Senate completed action on the bill permitting fire vehicles to use the studded tires between Nov. 15 and April 1.

Being normal hasn't hurt comedian Dan O'Sullivan

Comedian Dan O'Sullivan, who has made several appearances at SIEU's comedy nights, says he's too normal looking to draw his comedy from his appearance like some other funny men.

So where does O'Sullivan get ideas?

"When you're normal you have to look beyond yourself for things to poke fun at," he says. "But I probably wouldn't knock myself anyway — I don't believe in myself."

This St. Louis comedian confesses to reading two newspapers every day in search of material.

"My humor is fun-loving, maybe a little sarcastic," he says. "It's easy to find things to click off after in the paper. Politicians especially."

O'Sullivan says much of what goes on in the sports world provides grist for his mill. Even his marriage is not safe from an O'Sullivan's hand.

"Actually," he admits, "my wife Sara not only serves as my behind-the-scenes straight man, she writes some of my material. She used to be something of a comic herself."

Sara has foreseen comedy for the time being to concentrate on the couple's first child, a 7-month-old son named Roseanne who was born June 10.

The young comedian, who grew up in Bel-Nor in north county St. Louis, now resides in the Soland neighborhood in south St. Louis, says he always envisioned a career in the performing arts. But he originally planned to be a teacher. He was working on a theater degree at the University of Missouri at St. Louis when he met fellow student and theater hopeful Dan Chopin, who was already part of a comedy group. Chopin saw O'Sullivan's comedic potential and asked him to become part of the Easy Street Players.

The group, which included Craig Hawksley and Rodney Wheeler, was at an open-mic night at a now-defunct West Port nightspot. They stayed at Cleo's for 18 months, until the establishment was sold. When the name of Cleo's became the final curtain call for the Easy Street Players,

"We all decided to go it alone," O'Sullivan says. "I'd been wanting to try stand-up comedy, and the time was right."

He set about laying the groundwork, which included touring the country and auditioning clubs, galleries, bars and restaurants occasionally at comedy clubs, and eventually working his way to master of ceremonies.

All this while, odd jobs paint the houses and waiting tables at odd food on his table.

But it wasn't long before this comic, who confesses he's not good at telling jokes ("I have salesmen friends who tell them to me"), was ready to go on the road with his act.

Today, he travels 35 weeks each year, covering the East, South and Midwest.

He hasn't worked out on the West Coast yet, but that's coming," he says.

Unlike some comics, O'Sullivan says he doesn't have a dark side.

"I'm just out there trying to have fun and hoping my audience is, too," he says. "I think of comedy as therapy. I love to get up; guess I'm a ham at heart, but I wouldn't trade this job for anything."

Dancer to perform with Muny

Barbara Liebhardt Blasingame, a local performer and dance instructor, has been chosen as a member of the Muny's dancing chorus for this year's summer season, and marks her fourth year as a dancer with the St. Louis open-air theater.

Blasingame was chosen from among 400 applicants for the eight chorus spots. Four more female dancers were chosen for the roles, and will appear in the Muny's presentations of Fiddler on the Roof, Guys and Dolls, Peter Pan, July, 1926.

Owner of The Turning Pointe Academy of Dance in Glen Carbon, Blasingame was dancing with the St. Louis Civic Ballet Company for seven years, beginning

VP Fair completes plans for disabled

VP Fair organizers again are making special plans for the disabled who want to attend the VP Parade on Thursday evening, July 2, as well as the VP Fair, July 3 to 5.

"The past two years have been so successful that we're going to duplicate our efforts to make the parade and fair a meaningful experience for all who want to come downtown," said Alvin L. Smith, co-chairman of Disabled Services.

During the parade on July 2, the entire south side of the 700 block of Market will be set aside for the disabled.

The reserved area is adjacent to the General American Life Insurance building.

Interpreters will assist the disabled, and an announcer will assist the visually-impaired. Volunteers from Southwestern Bell also will be on hand to assist the group. Bathrooms for the disabled will be located near the tent and at the four Red Cross tents on the fairgrounds and on Leonor K. Sullivan Boulevard (Wharf Street).

In addition, golf carts will be available to shuttle mobility-impaired persons to various locations on the fairgrounds and along the wharf. Special seating for all disabled people and their families and friends will be provided for the VP Fair event.

Interpreters will be available for the hearing-impaired at each main stage event. Information on seating can be obtained at the Services For the Disabled tent.

Parking for disabled fairgoers will be available at the Stadium West and East areas. Vans may be parked at the parking lot south of Busch Stadium.

According to fair officials, the disabled should arrive no later than 3 p.m. to avoid traffic.

The parade is scheduled for 6 to 8:30 p.m.

During the 9 a.m. VP Fair opening ceremony on the main stage July 3, an interpreter will be provided for hearing-impaired fairgoers.

A tent with the sign and flag indicating "Services For the Disabled" will be located at Chestnut and Third streets at the north leg of the Gateway Arch.

Throughout the fair, portable toilets for wheelchair users will be located near the tent and at the four Red Cross tents on the fairgrounds and on Leonor K.

Sullivan Boulevard (Wharf Street).

In addition, golf carts will be

Disabled want total bus access

The Bi-State Development Agency should commit, from the beginning, to making all buses accessible for disabled people. That was the consensus of the individuals who appeared June 23 at a public hearing on the agency's proposed plan for disabled transportation.

"Currently, many people in the metropolitan area, including Illinois, can't ride the buses because they are not all lift-equipped," said Nancy Verderber of St. Louis. "We are very dismayed we cannot be independent-living citizens."

The agency held hearings June 22 and June 23 at various locations in Illinois and Missouri to get input on a proposed plan for disabled transportation. The plan, which is in draft,

The plan, which is in draft form, was spurred by new federal regulations that require Bi-State and other public transit agencies to spend at least 3 percent of their annual operating budget to serve the disabled.

The St. Louis Metropolitan Area Committee on Accessible Transportation helped Bi-State officials develop the plan, which would include repair and upgrade of 171 lift-equipped buses for fixed-route accessible service and purchase of 60 new buses (State) put us out of business, he said.

The plan also proposes to expand the City's paratransit service to now-clarified areas and make the service available within 24 hours. Matt Buckley suggested Bi-

State equip all buses with lifts in addition to the paratransit service. "In order to be totally independent, you have to provide 100 percent accessibility," on our buses," he said. "It's a pain," he said. "As a full-time taxpayer, I want to be able to use the services that I pay for."

James Tuscher, program director for the Paraquad van transportation service for disabled people, said 100 percent accessibility is the only way to meet the need.

"Paratransit by itself cannot vice that I pay for."

Harris said.

The plan also includes forming an advisory committee to monitor the plan and make sure improvements are implemented.

Deborah Philips, co-chairman of the accessible transportation committee, said the committee

"Paratransit" by itself cannot power a bus, the mad and not-power can a fixed-route system," Tuscher said. "Public transportation is a public service supported by tax dollars, and yet most disabled people can't get home, she said. Tuscher is "extremely satisfied" with "Bil-Stat's proposal." "Bil-Stat has been very cooperative and has incorporated 95 percent of what we committed," she said. "We're very happy," she said.

Tuscher said Paraquad was formed because Bi-State buses do not provide necessary service. "We'd love to have (Bi-State) will accept comments on the plan through July 2. Comments may be made by writing to Bi-State, 707 N. First Street, St. Louis, Mo. 63102.

Committee recognizes appearance of businesses

Three businesses have been recognized for their contributions to the aesthetic appearance of the city. The beautification committee of the Women's division of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce presented awards to representatives of each of the businesses: McDonald's at 21st Street and Madison Avenue, Central Bank at 24th Street and Madison Avenue and Lee's Famous Recipe Fried Chicken at 3516 Nameoki Road.

Creative landscaping and general upkeep and maintenance of the grounds surrounding these businesses are cited by the committee in its selection of recipients of the awards. Certificates of recognition are presented throughout the year to businesses that fulfill the criteria of the committee.

Triplets need more players

Remember when you played ball as a kid?

There were usually four or five guys who got together and played. That's the way it used to be. If one guy left, it sure changed things. Especially if he owned the ball or bat.

There was nobody to replace him and the rest of the kids had to go home for supper, too. It seems hard to believe that something like that could happen in American Legion baseball. It didn't, but the Granite City Chiefs team did come close a couple of times. On two occasions this summer, they have arrived at games with nine players. As any regular American knows, that's the minimum to play a baseball game.

Based on the team's success on those occasions, they might want to add another player. The way it was at Bethalto in the season opener 10-7 on June 14 and won a pair of games in Trenton on Saturday.

Baring injuries, the only thing to worry about is pitching. If the starter pitches a great game, the team is in great shape. At Bethalto, John Moad took the mound and won his second afternoon when he fell behind 6-0 to Centralia in the second game. But he recovered to pitch four brilliant innings before Hendrickson came in from left field to slam the door and notch his second save.

The Triplets had to borrow a couple of players from the junior team to play in the game in Bethalto. At Trenton, they had most of their frontline players on hand, but no reserves. Jamie Hogan had six hits in the two games. Greg, Tim, Ferguson, Todd Hinterser, Moad and Hendrickson also contributed offensively.

On Saturday, Mike Krausz pitched well into the seventh inning when Darin Hendrickson came in to get a save in the 3-1 win over Trenton. Moad seemed on his way to a successful afternoon when he fell behind 6-0 to Centralia in the second game. But he recovered to pitch four brilliant innings before Hendrickson came in from left field to slam the door and notch his second save.

The Triplets had to borrow a couple of players from the junior team to play in the game in Bethalto. At Trenton, they had most of their frontline players on hand, but no reserves. Jamie Hogan had six hits in the two games. Greg, Tim, Ferguson, Todd Hinterser, Moad and Hendrickson also contributed offensively.

Mike Hogan made spectacular catches in center field, but he had to. He was stuck with Krausz and Hendrickson on either side of him in the outfield. He did the job. Darin hurt his back making a slide early in the first game, but he stayed in. There was no choice. As long as he was healthy, no further injury, he had to continue.

Lots of credit goes to the hardy souls who played the games, but manager Gus Lignoul acknowledged he has a problem with enough warm bodies on certain days.

"This is our first year, and we're still learning how to get things done," Lignoul said. "We know there will be conflicts with work. And the junior legion team had a double-header today (Saturday), so that took some of our other players."

One solution might be for some of the players to align themselves with one team or the other. That way, both Lignoul and Optimists might be certain all know what to expect each day. Both teams have busy schedules, so most of the players should get enough work in with one team.

Another option is one Lignoul is exploring next summer. It is, after all, the Tri-City American Legion Post. Not only are Granite City players available, so are those in Madison and Venice.

"Though known mainly for basketball, those two towns could provide a couple of extra players to help us out," Lignoul said.

"That's something we're going to do next year," Lignoul said. "I know there are a couple of kids down there who could help us."

There are, Dale Turner, a starting guard on Venice High School's state championship basketball team, will be one of the leading hitters in the area this year.

And Orlando Love is a competent lefthanded pitcher for the Red Devils.

Of course, while there are contacts in Granite City with some of the Madison and Venice athletes might have summer basketball camps. But at least they have basketball.

Triplets have had success with only nine players this summer. But it's something they should try to avoid.

Bad bounces hurt Chiefs layoff hurt his team.

"He pitched real well for seven innings," Gurnik said. "He had four strikeouts and didn't walk anybody. They hit some balls off him, but he was the victim of some bad bounces."

Although the breaks went against him, Gurnik said a week players was spiked and they tried to hit Banks with three pitches on the same at-bat."

NOTES: The Chiefs gained a victory when the June 21 game against Taylorville was rained off. Taylorville failed to show up for the game. "I would prefer to play, but the league commissioner called them five times and didn't get a response," Gurnik said. "It's another option than rescheduling is a forfeit." The Chiefs are tied for third in the league and four teams make the playoffs. "It's a good way to go and we play the teams ahead of us," Gurnik said. "So if we knock them off it will go a long way towards moving up."

Just say no

BASEBALL PLAYERS for the Granite City Elks 1063 are learning something more important than baseball this summer. All four teams sponsored by the Elks are wearing shirts with the "Just Say No" to drugs logo on them. It was the idea of Greg Patton, athletic director at Granite City

High School and the manager of the Elks' Midget I team. The Elks are planning similar messages for their soccer and hockey teams. The Midget I team is with coaches Patton (left rear), Bob Cowan (middle) and Wilmer Stinson. The team started the season with a 7-0 record.

Dippel to play summer soccer in Europe

In the "How I Spent My Summer Vacation" department, most returning students at Granite City High School this fall will have a tough time matching Craig Dippel.

Dippel will be joining soccer players from across Illinois as part of the Illinois Under 19 team of TEAMS/USA that will be competing in youth games in Denmark, Holland, Sweden, West Germany and the Soviet Union.

He left Midway Airport in Chicago yesterday en route to Amsterdam for the first leg of a month-long odyssey. The team will participate in the Dana Cup, a tournament featuring 600 teams from 20 countries last year. The tournament will conclude with the championship and consolation finale July 25.

The team will move to Bielefeld/Detmold, West Germany on July 26 for more training and a pair of exhibition games against a Danish team. On July 11, the team flies to Amsterdam for a couple of days of sightseeing and a two-hour training session with Soviet coaches July 13. They will be in Minsk for the Dynamo Festival July 14 before returning to Moscow July 17.

From there it is back to Hjorring, Denmark, where they will participate in the Dana Cup, a remainder of the summer baseball season, but as Optimists manager Paul Kacer said after Monday's game, "It's an opportunity no one could pass up."

TEAMS/USA, an affiliate of the United States Youth Soccer Association, is entering its fourth year selecting outstanding youth players to compete against their European counterparts. Dippel was selected in theouts during the winter and spring.

Dippel, a goaltender, is the son of Robert and Jennifer Dippel of 2450 State Street, Granite City.

Dippel will be missing the Triplets postponed by weather; pull out of St. Louis tourney

It's been a dry summer so far for the Triplets, but Thursday/Wednesday morning's light showers gave the Triplets a couple of days off.

The wet grounds at Varsity Field forced the cancellation of a pair of senior legion games with Waterloo on Tuesday and the game with Marissa last night were both postponed. The Optimists' game at Bethalto on Wednesday was also postponed.

Tri-City plays at Collinsville in a District 22 North Division matc-up tonight. But manager Gus Lignoul pulled his team out of a Fourth of July Tournament in St. Louis this weekend.

"We have some guys who went good and made mistakes," Lignoul said. "Combined with the busy schedule we have coming up, we decided it was best to not play in the tournament. We didn't have to end up playing about 12 days in a row if we had gone."

Fans hungry for more local high school radio sports coverage could have their appetites fed a little this fall.

WRYT (1080-AM) has announced an expected sign-on date of Sept. 1 to serve the people.

people of greater Madison County. Although tentative plans call for some music in the program mix, most of the programming will be directed towards local news and sports.

WRYT will be centered in Edwardsville, where co-owners Bill Horan and Alton have received their license.

"We hope to do as much local high school sports as possible," said Ken Scheffel, general manager of WRYT. "We have applied for a night signal with the FCC, and hopefully we will be able to do as many games as we can."

Scheffel, a native of Brighton, spent time and program director Bill Reker have hired "several" people for work at the new station.

"We're looking at some others," he said. "We haven't hired anybody yet specifically for sports play-by-play."

Scheffel wasn't sure if WRYT would have the night signal by the Sept. 1 sign-on date, but he is hopeful he will have it soon after.

"We hope to be able to do sports quite a bit like WIBV (in Belleville)," Scheffel said. "They focus mostly on the Belleville teams and others in that area. Our main focus will be Madison County."

The transmitter site, at Interstate 55 and Illinois 143, is under construction. Construction will also begin on a studio and an office at Illinois 159 and Kettle River Drive in Edwardsville across from Cottonwood Mall. The station also hopes to have offices in Granite City, Collinsville and Alton. Wood River, Bethalto, Troy, Maryville and other communities can expect local coverage as well.

Scheffel, who is employed by Future Advertising in St. Louis, has worked for radio stations in Alton and Litchfield. He is a graduate of SIUE. Reker, a graduate of the University of Illinois, has worked with KMOX as an on-air news personality and has 19 years of experience. He is also an SIUE graduate.

Sr. Olympics' medical response tested quickly

By Jim Baer
Journal sports writer

ST. LOUIS — When a 76-year-old Ohioan suffered an apparent heart attack Monday while competing in table tennis at the National Senior Olympics in Clayton, the Red Cross emergency help came immediately.

Captain Ralph Break, a 12-year-veteran of the St. Louis Fire Department and volunteer with the American Red Cross, was one of the first medical technicians on the scene. He was working in the training room in Francis Field house at

"We administered Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) almost immediately," Break said. "We had to find a vein because one of the spectators trained in CPR. Everything was under control. Someone cleared the room so another person kept track of time.

The Clayton (medical personnel) responded to our 911 call almost immediately. When the room left here, he had a heart attack."

Wednesday, Ernest Lampert of Celina, Ohio was still critical condition in the intensive care unit of St. Mary's Health Center in Clayton.

With the first National Senior

Olympics were in the planning stages more than a year ago, medical response was one of the major concerns of the organizers.

Everyone knew it would be hot and humid in St. Louis. More than 2,000 seniors would be here, and some would come with their roommates.

"That's why we went to Dr.

Bill Miller, executive director of the St. Louis American Red Cross, said Karen Marshall, president of the U.S. National Senior Olympic Committee. The Red Cross assembled a network of medical personnel to meet our varied needs.

The Red Cross medical staff did everything from dispensing bandages to treating heat-related illnesses.

Though there were two documented heart-attacks, (through Wednesday) the number of serious incidents was kept to a minimum. Pulled muscles and twisted ankles kept the Red Cross medical staff busy.

"I'm almost at the level of conditioning by the athletes," said Break, one of 200 medical volunteers that staffed the event. "I'd like to be in that good shape."

The plan of attack was to provide emergency medical coverage at all major sports venues. Track and field had four carts, and 10 medical personnel available at all times.

The Red Cross coordinated its efforts with the medical training staff at Washington University and the St. Louis University.
